

In this application, a battery-operated light was adapted using a Battery Interrupter and a Pal Pad. It is fun to activate the light as the book is read. Attaching a cable-connector to the Battery Interrupter would allow the light to interface with the relay output of a communication device. All of Adaptivation's communication devices have relay output.